CAN YOU GUESS.

Here's a Chance to Make Ten Dollars Easy.

All You Have to Do Is to Pick the Winners in the Coming Primary.

Just for the interest attached to a guessing contest and to put a little more interest into the coming campaign for County Officers, The NEWS will give its readers a chance to make ten dollars and have a little fun at guessing on the side.

To the person making the first nearest correct guess of the winners in the Democratic Primary Election which will be held in this county on Saturday, June 1st, 1901, The NEWS will present a ten dollar gold piece. The conditions of the contest are simple. Old subscribers and new subscribers who pay $2 on their subs riptions will each be entitled to a guess, and to as many guesses as they pay year's subscription. If no one guesses correctly, the first one who guesses the closest to all the winners will receive the ten dollars.

You intend to pay your subscription anyway, and you may as well pay before the first day of June and have a chance of getting your money back, besides gaining the distinction of knowing more about the political situation than your neighbors.

Each guess will be registered when received as to the exact day, hour and minute. No one will be permitted to see how any one else has guessed. In guessing only the offices on the ballot are to be considered.

The Universal Cry—Wanted, a Man. Never did the world call more loudly for young men with force, energy and purpose, young men trained to do some thing, than today. Thousands of thousands are out of employment, yet never before was it so hard to get a good employee for almost any position as today. Everywhere people are asking where to find a good servant, a polite and efficient clerk, an honest cashier, a good stenographer who can spell and punctuate and is generally well informed. Managers and superintendents of great institutions everywhere are hunting for good people to fill all sorts of positions. They tell us that it is almost impossible to find efficient help for any department.

There are hundreds of applicants for every vacant place, but they either show signs of dissipation, are rude or gruff in manner, are slothful or sluggish in dress, are afraid of hard work, lack defects which hold them out. Even if they are given positions very few are able to hold them, and so this great army of tramps about from store to store, from office to factory, wondering why others succeed when they fail, why others got the positions when they are denied.

"Remember that the young man, like the angler's worm, is rather better for being visibly alive.

"Be careful in the choice of your surroundings. Environment will do a great deal for a man. For example, flour and water in a chintz jug is cream sause. In a pall on the sidewalk it is

"Don't forget that there's a time for everything and that everything should be done in its proper time. Never burn for bargains in umbrellas on a rainy day.

"You may make enemies. If you know who they are, don't mention them. Silence is golden. It saves the money that might otherwise be spent in defending a libel suit. If you don't know who they are, well, abuse laid-back enemy indiscriminately bestowed; it's a good thing wasted."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

How Blaine Remembered Henderson.

It was before General Henderson had been elected to congress, and Blaine was speaker of the house. Henderson was in Washington, and naturally Blaine was one of the statesmen that he much desired to meet, and the opportunity came of a morning just as the speaker was passing through the lobby on his way to the marble rostrum. The formal greetings were exchanged in a brief moment, and General Henderson was left to see the swinging doors close on the form of the Republican leader.

Six years later General Henderson again came to Washington, this time to get lowa divided into two judicial districts. He put up at Wormley's, where Blaine also lived, it being in those days a fashionable and flourishing bostomy.

A week or so after his arrival from Iowa, as General Henderson was entering the dining room, he met Blaine after having passed and repassed him many times. The Maine man grasped him cordially by the hand, called him by name and inquired about Iowa.

"I well heard of Senator Blaine's name," says General Henderson. "When I was a school boy, in the time I before I took to the head waiter, I became a school boy again, and I was asked my name by him. Now think hard and be sure of your answer."

"Yes, sir," replied the waiter. "He done called me orah las' night an asked yo' name an all about yo'. I told him yo' was Mistah Henderson."—Washington Post.

Origin of the Yosemite Valley.

It is perfectly obvious to those familiar with glacial phenomena that Yosemite is quite an ordinary and necessary product of glacial erosion under the conditions prevailing in that locality. The main glacier came down Tenaya canyon, cutting it to a steep but fairly uniform grade. Yosemite valley is but a continuation of that gorge. The end of the glacier at the time that it was cutting Yosemite extended not far beyond Fort Monroe. It remained there for a long time and therefore plowed out the bottom of the valley to a considerable depth. Branch glaciers descended the Tenaya glacier when it filled Yosemite, coming down the valleys of Yosemite, Little Yosemite, Ililouette and Bridal Veil and other creeks and forming hanging valleys at the junctions.

The young man was visibly annoyed at the questions which the heiress' father insisted on putting. At last he could endure it no longer. His ancestor had blushed up into his cheeks, and he proceeded to give some instructions to the tradesman.

In due time it was sent home, and after a few days, his admiration being exhausted, the wealthy man sent for his plumber.

"I don't mind confessing to you," said the former, "that I don't appreciate the fine arts unless they are turned to some useful purpose. Now, I have something to suggest to you."

And he proceeded to give some instructions to the tradesman.

A week later, on the anniversary of his birthday, the millionaire pointed out with pride to his guests in the middle of his conservatory the bust of his grandfather, from the top of whose head rose gracefully a jet of limpid water, falling into a marble basin in which some fine gold and silver fish disported themselves.—Christian En-davor World.

Reaching an Understanding.

The young man was visibly annoyed at the questions which the heiress' father insisted on putting. At last he could endure it no longer. His ancestor had blushed up into his cheeks,

"I would have you understand that I am no ordinary fortune hunter."

"That's all right," was the stern responder. "I am just as particular as you are. I'd have you understand that I am no plain, everyday duke chaser either."—Washington Star.

An Anecdote of Verdi.

The first production of Verdi's opera "Othello" took place at Milan, and all the prominent musical critics of Europe gathered in the Cathedral City in honor of the occasion. Among them was a Parisian journalist of wide reputation and admitted authority in the musical world. His first care on his arrival in Milan was to seek out Verdi and ask to be allowed to be present at one of the final rehearsals.

The composer received him with extreme politeness, but replied that he could not possibly grant his request, as he had decided that the rehearsals were to be absolutely private, and he could not make an exception in the favor of any one journalist, however distinguished.

The Paris critic, far from pleased at this answer, protested that in these circumstances his account of the opera might not be all he should like it to be.

"You see," he explained to the composer, "that I shall have to telegraph my article to Paris the next day in order to be in time for the performance."

But Verdi was more than equal to the occasion. "My dear sir," he made answer, "I do not write for 'the next day.' The critic bowed himself out.

A Card.

ED. BOURBON NEWS: There being a report circulated throughout the country that Mr. Harvey Hilder had hired me to make the race for Assessor, I wish to enter a most emphatic denial of the truth of the rumor. I am running on my own merits, and expect to win without resorting to any such underhand methods.

Notice is hereby given that property owners within the city limits must have their premises thoroughly cleaned, all rubbish hauled away and otherwise put in good sanitary condition immediately. This order is imperative and must be attended to at once. By order of the BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Terrible Conflagration.

The largest and most terrible fire in the history of Florida occurred at Jacksonville last Friday.

The losses are estimated at many millions. Ten thousand persons were made homeless, six lives lost, and the entire business and residential sections of the city are in ashes. Miles of blocks were burned.

The city building went, then in turn the fire department building, the armory, the county court house, clerks office, with county records, criminal court house, city jail, graded schools, Catholic Church and orphanage, St. John's Episcopal Church and the Convent. Almost the entire city of magnificent building was burned up in less than four hours.

Chief Hailey, of the Fire Department, became insane as the fire spread beyond his control, and had to be taken in charge.

STORIES OF THE STAGE.

Coming Attractions, Gossip In the Lobby and Boxes

MR. WALKER WHITESIDE.

The engagement of Mr. Walker Whiteside at the Opera House to-night in the romantic drama "Heart and Sword," promises to be a society event. Two box parties have already been arranged, and it is understood all of the boxes are to be taken.

For several years Mr. Whiteside has devoted himself almost entirely to the production of Shakespearean and other classic plays. His several New York City engagements were given over to the magnificent scenic productions of Bard's great tragedies. The "Hamlet," production, it will be recalled was a splendid one, gorgeous and complete in every detail. Last season Mr. Whiteside made a notable presentation of Stanley Weyman's "Man in Black" and this season he will be seen in what is said to be one of the strongest romantic plays written. The title of this new play is "Heart and Sword," a translation from the German. The play is neither tragic nor bombastic in tone. It is a pure love story, modern in treatment and containing much comedy of the higher order. The company in support of Mr. Whiteside is said to be an excellent one, including Miss Lelia Wolstan. Secure your seats to-day at Brooks'.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

A great many of our music loving public have often expressed a desire to have some our great musical artists appear in our city. The appearance of Kathryn Micheline, the prima donna, on next Thursday evening at the Opera House, will give them an opportunity of hearing three great musical artists. Miss Micheline enjoys the distinction of being one of America's greatest singers. She will be assisted by Olive Kiler, the violinist, and Mrs. Robert Goldbeck, the pianist. Mrs. Goldbeck is the wife of the celebrated composer, Robert Goldbeck, and she is recognized as the most brilliant pianist in Chicago. Her touch is instinctively sensitive and musical. Her hands are remarkably supple and alert for difficulty of execution, combined with rare conception of harmony and counterpart, unusual in any except the most highly trained musicians.

The tickets for this attractions will be on sale at Brooks' to-morrow morning. Admission, 50 cts., 75 cts. and $1.

IT WILL BE A BIG THING AND WILL TEND TO STIR UP A LITTLE ENTHUSIASM IN THE OLD TOWN WITHOUT TAKING ANY MONEY OUT OF CIRCULATION HERE. IT BEHOVES EVERY BODY TO DO ALL THEY CAN TO MAKE IT A BIG SUCCESS.

A Nuisance Which Can Be Abated

SUNDAY WAS A LOVELY DAY. AT BOTH THE MORNING AND EVENING SERVICES THE CHURCHES WERE CROWDED WITH WORSHIPPERS, AND IN THE AFTERNOON THE STREETS WERE FULL OF PEDESTRIANS DECKED IN THEIR SPRING ATTIRE. THERE WAS ONLY ONE THING TO MAR THE THOROUGH ENJOYMENT OF THE BEAUTIFUL DAY, AND THAT WAS THE CLOUDS OF DUST WHICH FILLED THE AIR, AND RESEMBLED AN EAST INDIAN SIMOON.

IT PENETRATED THE PORTALS OF THE CHURCHES AND COVERED THE WORSHIPPERS WITH A COATING OF WHITE UNTIL IT MADE THEM RESEMBLE A CONVENTION OF MILLERS. HUNDREDS OF SPRING HATS WERE PRACTICALLY RUINED, AND MANY A MAN ON HIS WAY HOME FROM CHURCH WITH AN EASY CONSCIENCE AND CONTRITE HEART GAVE WAY TO PROFANITY.

THEY ARE NO REASON WHY THE STREETS SHOULD NOT BE SPRINKLED ON SUNDAY AS WELL AS DURING THE WEEK. THERE IS CERTAINLY MORE TRAVEL ON THAT DAY THAN ANY OTHER DURING THE WEEK. IT IS THE ONE DAY OF REST AND RECREATION FOR THE POOR LABORING MAN. IF HE TAKES HIS FAMILY OUT FOR A WALK WHEN THEY ARRIVE HOME THEY LOOK AS THOUGH THEY HAD BEEN HAVING A FREE-FOR-ALL WRESTLING MATCH IN THE HIGHWAY. A GOOD SOAKING OF THE STREETS IN THE EARLY MORNING AND ANOTHER AT NOON WOULD BE SUFFICIENT TO INSURE THE LAYING OF THE DUST AND CONTRIBUTE GREATLY TO THE ENJOYMENT OF THE DAY AS WELL AS A SAVING OF MUCH PROFANITY. THE MERCHANTS COMPLAIN THAT THE DUST AS WELL AS THE PROFANITY IS A SAVING OF MUCH PROFANITY. THE MERCHANTS COMPLAIN THAT THE DUST AS WELL AS THE PROFANITY IS A SAVING OF MUCH PROFANITY.

Legend of the Goldenrod.
According to legendary lore, the goldenrod was once snow white. It is said that great fields of these white flowers nodded gracefully to and fro as the winds swept over them and were quite happy until the wild flowers of brilliant hues began to ridicule them.

"What tame, pale, uninteresting creatures!" said the tiger lillies.

"Truly they are!" said the scarlet sage. "They are not worth looking at."

Other wild flower neighbors made like remarks and cast several glances at the white blossoms until the latter bowed their heads and wept.

"We are poor, colorless beggars," they wailed, "while all of our neighbors are clothed in gorgeous apparel!"

The autumn wind knew why the white flowers were grief stricken, and he resolved to help them. Calling to him the many hued fairies that live in the rainbow, he told them how the white flowers had been ridiculed by their neighbors.

"Leave it to us," said the fairies, "and soon the ill-treated ones shall have cause to rejoice."

Away sped the fairies to the end of the rainbow, where as you have heard, there is a great pot of magic gold dust. Together the fairies lifted the gold dust, hastened back to the fields and meadows and sprinkled it lavishly over the drooping, heartbroken flowers, now sunk in sound slumber.

When morning came, the sun looked down upon a gorgeously arrayed army of goldenrods, and so great was the surprise of their wild flower neighbors that some of them withered and died from sheer envy.

But, rejoicing in their good fortune, the goldenrods proudly held up their heads and faithfully kept guard until the icy winter wind in a hoarse voice bade them go to sleep.

A Boy With a Kind Heart.

The other day a horse was trying to get a very small quantity of oats from the dooryard of a very small house. In vain the poor fellow bowed his head and did his best to gain his dinner. At last, just as he was settling down to dumb and despairing patience a bright faced boy of perhaps 10 or 12 years of age happened along. Seeing the dilemma of the horse, the little fellow stopped and said: "Hello! Can't get your oats, can you? Never mind; I'll fix you." And straightway he shortened up the straps that held the bag in place and, with a kindly pat and a cheery word, which the grateful horse seemed to appreciate, went his way. I would like to be the mother or the aunt or even the first cousin to that boy. I would rather that he should belong to me than own a Paganini violin or a first water diamond the size of a Concord grape. Bless his heart, wherever he is, and may he long continue to live in a world that needs him. Kindness of heart and tenderness, consideration for the needs of the helpless and the weak and the courage that dares to be true to a merciful impulse are traits that go far toward the make up of angels. We need tender hearted boys more than we need a new tariff to bring up and develop the resources of the country. Our dumb animals.

Picture Got Her a Home.

Not many days ago some one was collecting pictures of pretty babies to publish in a Chicago paper and took a photograph of a poor little homeless girl. Soon after the tiny orphan's face, with several others, was published, and the paper containing it fell into the hands of a woman who had a beautiful home, but no child.

Before the great newspaper presses had finished rolling off copies of the edition containing that baby's picture a richly dressed woman appeared in the office, asking where she could find the original of the beautiful little face, and 12 hours later the homeless, nameless wifé had been taken away from the institution where charity was keeping her and tucked into a comfortable crib, with plenty of soft, warm clothing, in a home of her own.

One can only wish that every child not born into a happy home could be born with a face that would help it to find a way there as easily as this.

What Was Left.

"Sallie, what is 8 minus 6?" Sallie could not answer, which was nothing unusual, whereupon the teacher, thinking it might aid her by stating it less abstractedly, said:

"Now, Sallie, if your mamma went to the barn and found eight eggs and used six of them to make a cake, what would she have left?"

With a smile of contempt, Sallie answered, "Why, shells!"

Benny's Frugal Papa.

"Here," said Benny's papa, showing the little fellow a coin, "is a penny 300 years old. It was given to me when I was a boy."

"Well," cried Benny, "just think of any one being able to keep a penny as long as that without spending it!"

Little Peek-a-Boo.

Little Peek-a-Boo comes tripping round the corner of the stair, Peeking from behind the table, Round the sofa and the chair. First I see the right shoulder, Then a pair of starry eyes, Sweet with mirth, with laughter shining, To have made my mamma, As the baby has, soared. Say in full, sweet baby tones: "Peek-a-boo! I see 'ou'!" —Corinne L. Bartlett.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Cleveland's New Mayor.

After a few years of comparative retirement from the field of public affairs Tom L Johnson of Ohio is once more in the game. Recently elected mayor of Cleveland after an exciting and sensational campaign, he has assumed control of the office in highly dramatic fashion. It has been the custom for mayors elect of Cleveland to take office on the 10th of April. Mr. Johnson walked into the mayor's office,

A TOM JOHNSON ATTITUDE.

"This town," said Mrs. Jack, "needs improving. I am shocked when I dine out to hear nothing but nonsense talked. I shall give a dinner and have the conversation up to a certain standard." Before the dinner came off Jack said: "Tell you, Mary, that I can never talk at a dinner. I don't know what to say."

"Never mind, Jack, dear. I know that you are positively no good at a dinner party. Now, listen. I have written out a list of interesting subjects and pinned it on the tablecloth." And she led him up to the table. "Now, don't frown, but whenever it seems dull or people are not talking look at this list and talk of some of the things. Even if you don't know about them, appeal to me, and I'll help you out. There is!"

Just then the doorbell rang, and Mrs. Jack hurried away to greet the first guest.

After they were seated at dinner Mr. Jack asked the guest of honor if he had seen the recent views on the nebular hypothesis. The answer to her question and the interest in the subject were so slight that she looked at Jack, and he came valiantly to the rescue. "It does not seem to me, Mary," he called out, "that the meat has been unusually tough lately."

"What do you mean, Jack?" Jack looked perplexed but Mrs. Bangs was not satisfied, and she had a discussion as to butchers and meat that was eager enough to let Mrs. Jack get her bearings again.

The next subject she introduced was "the recent affair in South Africa." The interest in anything but Oom Paul's excessive plainness was not marked, and after a few desultory views had been expressed the conversation died out.

"Do you die?" thought Jack and looked at his list. "Speak about Jane's aprons" came next. "I don't know what to say about Jane's aprons, but things seem pretty dull, so I'll dash ahead as I was told to."

"I say, Mary, what is the matter with Jane's aprons? Aren't they all right? They look like the proper thing."

Visions of the husband of her youth at Morris Plains asylum dances before Mrs. Jack's eyes. Aprons! What was the matter with him?

When she had recovered a little, she heard the most elderly man saying to Mrs. Bangs: "Now, can you imagine me in a check apron with a leather belt? I always wore them when I was a boy." The elderly woman described black silk and other aprons of their youth and the check apron was discarded.

Mrs. Jack, rather cleverly steered the conversation around to her point again and asked generally, with a "Don't all speak at once" air, "Who has read the 'History of Papacy in the Nineteenth Century?" After expressing admiration for the work of Professor Nippold there was another silence, broken by one of the young men, who said, "What a thin old gentleman the pope is!"

Good hearted old Jack rushed to the rescue and broke the deadly silence with, "Have any of you had trouble with getting good butter lately?"

The food gatea of conversation were opened, and young and old sailed on the stream. Boarding school, college school, summer hotel and "fifl edge" butter were discussed and talked of, and amid peals of laughter the dinner was ended.

The men smoked, going as they pleased conversationally, and the ladies in the drawing room carried on the conversation on the lines laid down by their host at dinner.

After every one had gone Jack said, with an air of conscious rectitude, "Well, Mary, that dinner went off pretty well, didn't it?"

"I say," she said hysterically, "where did you get your list, and why did you talk of such awful things?"

"Awful things? Why, I talked about every single thing you wrote down, and I thought I kept them going pretty well. Old Mrs. Bangs squeezed my hand when she left and said she wished she could always sit by me at dinner. They all said it was a jolly dinner."

"But what made you talk about meat and Jane's aprons, and—oh, Jack, are you too dreadful?"

"Great Scott, Mary, didn't you give me the list? Here it is. See! It begins: 'Speak about tough meat. Speak about Jane's aprons. Last butter from grocer's bad.' I talked about them all!—just as you asked me to, and if I hadn't I think your dinner would have been pretty dull."
